LEADING PLANTS AND SEEDS RETAILER HARVESTS A £1.6M BUMPER CROP OF EXTRA REVENUE

Thompson & Morgan is one of the UK's leading online gardening companies, supplying the nation with high quality flower and vegetable plants, bulbs, seeds, trees and garden supplies.

The website receives millions of visits a year, so even just one percentage increase in revenue per visitor, for example, makes a big contribution to the bottom line.

No-risk performance-based fee

AWA has been continuously optimising the site since 2013, with a 'no win no fee' agreement that has proved to be rewarding for both companies.

Remuneration comes from a share of additional revenue generated as a result of split tests. Money is paid after sales have come in so there is no risk whatsoever for the client company.

The success of this unique relationship was recognised when the Thompson & Morgan and AWA were jointly awarded 'Partnership of the Year' by the Direct Commerce Association.

AT A GLANCE

Challenge

To accelerate results and add value to the existing in house CRO programme.

Method

As the site has high traffic levels, AWA offered a no-risk revenue-sharing partnership.

AWA researches, designs and runs several split tests a year and is paid by a percentage of proven additional sales uplifts.

Results

AWA's split tests have earned Thompson & Morgan in excess of £1.6m of additional revenue over three years.

The relationship was jointly awarded Partnership of the Year Award by the Direct Commerce Association.

Accelerated results

Thompson & Morgan originally picked AWA to help their successful in-house CRO programme blossom. "With AWA we were able to accelerate the rate of testing and deliver more complex tests, across mobile, tablet and PC devices" explained Marketing Services Manager, Claire Dixey. "The agency brings a lot of technical expertise and creative ideas. Our regular Thursday meetings are one of the highlights of my week".

Revenue Sharing pays for itself

AWA designs, launches and manages all the split tests. When one shows a statistically significant uplift, the winner is made live on the site in a way that lets the client measure its impact on an ongoing basis.

The additional revenue this generates, sitewide, is closely monitored, and AWA receives an agreed percentage. To validate the uplift in revenue, the original variation is continues to be seen by 5% of visitors.
